Protestant Parishioners 1802-1810

EARLY 19th CENTURY LISTS OF PROTESTANT PARISHIONERS IN THE DIOCESE OF MEATH

by REV. C.C. ELLISON, Diocesan Registrar

In 1802 Bishop Thomas Lewis O'Beirne instructed his Registrar to obtain from his clergy accurate written lists of their parishioners, with particulars of the various families. Some replied within a few days, others took a year or two compiling their lists, a few merely wrote down total numbers, some perhaps did not reply at all. The quality of the returns varies widely. The best give full details of families with abodes and occupations, most give some idea of family relationships, a few give only householder's name and the number of souls in the establishment, or just an undifferentiated string of names. The surviving lists cover about 50% of the parishes at the time and there are a couple of lists of children dated a little later. It seems the Bishop was preparing to embark on a Confirmation tour of his Diocese.

It is a cause for thankfulness that even 50% have survived, as most of the Meath Registry Records perished in the Four Courts and of the 28 parishes here given only 4 now have registers before 1800. No doubt it is due to the fact that these lists were among the episcopal papers until recent years that genealogists may now enjoy a field-day among the hundreds of Williams, Marys, Johns, Elizabeths and Thomases of 170 years ago.

A Parish Roll must have seemed a revolutionary idea in the sadly run down and disordered Diocese to which O'Beirne was translated from Ossory in 1798. He immediately got down to the task of ascertaining the true state of affairs in the parishes and issued a list of 20 searching questions to each incumbent. The answers make fascinating, and at times amusing, reading. Pluralities and non-residence were rife, only half the parishes had resident incumbents though most were served by some sort of curate. The majority of churches were ruinous and habitable glebe houses were few. In 1823 when O'Beirne died the picture was altogether different: 57 churches and 72 glebe houses had been built or reconstructed and nearly all parishes had a resident clergyman.

O'Beirne was particularly concerned for the keeping of records. He bemoaned the loss caused by lack of public registry of Births, Marriages and Deaths and the lack of security for diocesan papers kept in Registrars' houses, citing as a horrible warning the case of Ossory where "a Registrar died a bankrupt and his creditors seized the whole contents of his registry office amongst his other papers. The consequence was the loss of the Probate of some very important wills and great distress and confusion in many families." He urged that every diocese should have a proper registry office provided from a Barony levy. In both the pastoral and administrative spheres Thomas Lewis O'Beirne was one of the most outstanding Bishops of Meath and to this day the Diocese bears the marks of his zeal. But the proper registry office, which he advocated, has only been established since Trim became officially the Cathedral centre in 1955. Here, in conditions of tolerable order and security, have been gathered the scattered remnants of the diocesan archives, including Bishop O'Beirne's parish lists.
